I started my adventure in an advertising / printing industry - but I felt that this wasn't IT. I've took some time to rethink, and look for something I will be passionate about... and got inspired by my friend - Back-End Developer. I started to diggin in and decided that I want to take a course in Kodilla.com and learn how to become a Front End Developer. I'm at the beginning of my journey and I look for a space where I can grow, learn at polish my skills. I've chosen React as a technology I want to specialise in, but I also want to learn AEM in the future. For now I want to focus on gaining professional experience and team work.
